"LET IT DIE!"
The Democrat party never can and never ought to win another National Victory.

We republish the following editorial clipped from the Chicago Times a short time after the presidential election of 1860, and it is worthy of republishing again:

"The recent Presidential election has shown that there is an invincible reason why the Democratic party can never win a national victory. It is that the youths of this Republic are not Democratic. The sons of Democratic fathers have grown up Republicans. So long as slavery and the war linger within the memory of Americans, the youths of this Republic will continue to grow up Republicans; and slavery and the war will be remembered as long as the public school system exists. The public school have slain the Democratic party, with the text book. It is vain for statesmen to declare that there were as many Democrats as Republicans in the Union army. It is vain to affirm that the war for the preservation of the Union could not have been carried to a successful close without the aid of the Democratic party. It is idle for philanthropy to suggest that the attitude of that party to the war in the beginning was a humane one; that it was inspired by the higher and better wish that the cause of the conflict should be peaceably removed, and the spilling of brothers' blood by brothers' hands avoided. The Democratic party has been ideally identified with slavery and slaveholding. The Republican party is ideally identified with emancipation and the war. Therefore the youths of the country are incapable of being Democratic.

Therefore the Democratic party can never win a National victory. The old men are dying away. The boys that catch the ballots that fall from their stiffened hands are Republicans. This fact cannot be denied. It will do no good to quarrel with it. All other causes which have operated to diminish the number of Democrats and increase the number of Republicans are insignificant beside this one tremendous and invincible fact.

The curse of slavery has poisoned the blood and rotted the bone of Democratic party. The malediction of the war has palsied its brain. The young wife who held the babe up to kiss the father as he hurried to drum-tap of his departing regiment has not suckled a Democrat. The weary foot of the gray grandmother who watched the cradle while the wife was busy has not rocked the cradle of democrats. The chair that the soldier father never came back to fill has not been climbed upon by democrats. The old blue coat that his comrades carried back was cut up for little jackets, but not one covered the heart of a democrat. The rattled musket that fell from him with his last shot became the thoughtless toy of the boys, but not a hand that played with it was the hand of a democrat. The babe he kissed and grew for his return, and its unwitting and unanswered notes were not from the throat of a democrat. The tear-soiled camp letters which the mother read aloud in the long, bitter evenings while the boys clustered at her knees, did not fall on democratic ears. The girls' sobs, blending with the mother's weeping, did not make democrats of their brothers. Perhaps the father had been a democrat all his life!

The children go to school. There is not a democrat on its benches. The first reader contains a portrait of Abraham Lincoln—that kind and sturdy face never made a democrat. On its simple pages, in words of one or two syllables, is told the story of his birth and death. That story never made a democrat. In the pranks of the playground that name silences the frolicsome and makes the jolliest grave. The name never made a democrat. In the pictures that light up the geography are the firing on Fort Sumpter and the death of Ellsworth. Those pictures make no democrats. The first page of the history contains a representation of the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. No boy gazes on that and never after avows himself a democrat.

In the higher grades the same subtle and irresistible influence is at work. The text book contains extracts from patriotic speeches during the war. Those speeches make no democrats. The great battles are briefly described; the narrative has no democratic listeners. The strain of martial music runs through the readers, and that music makes no democrats. Sketches of the great generals are given; the brave deeds arouse the enthusiasm of the lads, but there is no democrat among them. The horrors and sufferings of the slaves are told; the maddened blood that mounts the boy's cheeks is not democratic blood. The curse of slavery has pursued the democratic party and has hounded it to its death. Therefore, let it die, and no lip will be found to say a prayer over its grave.

The late defeat need not be attributed to any other causes. Other causes were at work, but they were only incidental. The tariff was one. Sectionalism was a second. "Let well enough alone" was a third. The October failure in Indiana was a fourth. But all these were trivial, and together could not have accomplished the result. The result was accomplished because the youths of the Republic are not Democratic. The party is therefore without a future and without a hope. The malediction of the war has palsied its brain. The curse of slavery has poisoned its blood and rotted its bone. Let it die.

We clip the following from the Russell Record entitled "An old paper:"

"Rev. J. C. Dana called Monday morning and showed us a copy of the Gleaner, published at Wilkesbarre, Pa., dated Friday evening, November 6th, 1812. Mr. Dana's father was a subscriber of the Gleaner at the date of this issue, and remained so until his death, two or three years ago. The paper is filled with war news—the war of 1812, and the Napoleonic wars. Among other things is an official account of the battle of Queenstown, and the following paragraph in reference to Napoleon:

"The Emperor of Russia, in a proclamation to his people, speaks of Bonaparte's design of marching to Moscow; but observes that even if victorious, it would be his destruction. He exhorts them not to be disheartened, and assures them he will fight the French when the period for offering battle arrives.

Those were troublous times in all parts of the world, as is evinced by the following editorial:

The year 1812 presents the sorrowful spectacle of the whole civilized world (as it is called,) being in a state of warfare. Such a period has not before occurred for many ages. For the last twenty years human blood has flowed in torrents—even unto the horse bridges. Ah! what has it availed, what benefit has mankind received from the mighty slaughter! It is literally 'a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness.'

There is an advertisement addressed "To Men of Patriotism, Courage and Enterprise," wherein every able-bodied man who shall be enlisted for the army of the U. S. for the term of five years, is offered a bounty of sixteen dollars, and in addition 160 acres of land if he serves the full term faithfully and obtains an honorable discharge. The notice concludes as follows:

For the sake of those who may not prefer a term of service for five years, the government allows a period of enlistment for eighteen months, still offering the same rich compensation as above specified, except the donation of land. Those who may feel any interest in the welfare of our common country, will embrace the present opportunity of evincing their patriotism by enlisting themselves under the banners of the U. S. Those who may not be impelled by these motives, may find means in the same employment of satisfying their wants—enlarging their fortunes, or gratifying their passion for pleasure. For which they will make immediate application to the subscriber. The above was signed by Robert Gray, Capt. 16th Regiment U. S. Infantry.

The political department contains the election returns from Luzerne county for members of Congress, and of the Legislature and county officers. Of elections elsewhere it says: "The mail brings the glad tidings of the election of a Federal Governor in New Jersey," and "From the returns received the Madisonian ticket in Pennsylvania has prevailed by a large majority. But the news is that Ohio has come out for Clinton; if so, we shall yet have 'a new pilot to the ship.'"

At the head of a column there is a notice that has a very familiar appearance. Indeed, we think we have seen something very similar in some of our contemporaries. As it may serve as a reminder to some of the readers of the Record, we reproduce a part of it. It is a "Notice To Subscribers," begins in this wise: "All persons indebted to the Gleaner are earnestly solicited to make payment by November Court. * * * We hope this request will be punctually attended to, and enable us to proceed without embarrassment in our business. * * * A word to the wise is enough."

There are two items that are conspicuous for their absence in the Gleaner—the railroad time table, and "News by Telegraph." Railroads and Telegraphy, which in our day seem absolutely indispensable, had never been dreamed of. The Gleaner is a curiosity, and an interesting relic.
